INTRODUCTION

This project is a web based shopping system for an existing shop. Online shopping (sometimes know as e-tail from “electronic retail” or e-shopping) is a form of electronic commerce which allows consumers to directly buy goods or services from a seller over the internet using a web browser. Alternative names are: e-web-store, e-shop, e-store, Internet shop, web-shop, web-store, online store, online storefront and virtual store.

Mobile commerce (or m-commerce) describes purchasing from an online retailer’s mobile optimized online site or app.

An online shop evokes the physical analogy of buying products or services at a bricks-and-mortar retailer or shopping center; the process is called business-to-consumer (B2C) online shopping. In the case where a business buys from another business, the process is called business-to-business (B2B) online shopping. The largest of these online retailing corporations are Alibaba, Amazon.com, and eBay.

- Online shopping is the process of buying goods or services over the internet.
- It is a convenient and efficient way to shop, as it allows consumers to browse and purchase products from the comfort of their own homes.
- The first online shopping transaction took place in 1994, when a man named Michael Aldrich purchased a Sting CD from a retailer in the UK.

There are many reasons why online shopping has become so popular.

- One reason is convenience. Online shoppers can shop at any time of day or night, from anywhere in the world.
- Another reason for the popularity of online shopping is the wider selection of products available.

Of course, there are also some risks associated with online shopping.

- One risk is that shoppers may not be able to see or touch the products they are buying before they purchase them.
- Another risk is that shoppers may not be able to return or exchange products that they are not happy with.

Overall, online shopping is a safe and convenient way to shop. However, it is important to be aware of the risks and to take steps to protect yourself

PROBLEM IDENTIFICATION

There are many problems that can be identified in online shopping.

Some of the most common problems include:

- Product quality: Customers are often concerned about the quality of products they buy online. They may worry that the products are counterfeit or that they will not be as good as they appear in the photos.
- Shipping and delivery: Customers may be unhappy with the shipping and delivery time of their online orders. They may also be unhappy with the cost of shipping.
- Payment security: Customers are concerned about the security of their financial information when they shop online. They want to be sure that their credit card numbers and other personal information are safe.
- Return policy: Customers want to be sure that they can return or exchange products they buy online if they are not satisfied. They want to be sure that the return policy is easy to understand and that they will not be charged any fees for returning or exchanging products.
- Customer service: Customers want to be able to get help if they have any problems with their online orders. They want to be sure that customer service is responsive and helpful.
- Website design and usability: Customers want to be able to easily find the products they are looking for and to checkout quickly and easily. They want the website to be easy to use and navigate.
- Fraud and scams: Customers are concerned about the risk of fraud and scams when they shop online. They want to be sure that the website they are shopping on is legitimate and that their personal information is safe.

OBJECTIVE

The objective of online shopping is to provide customers with a convenient and efficient way to purchase products or services. Online stores offer a wide variety of products and services, and customers can browse and shop at their own pace. They can also compare prices and read reviews before making a purchase.

Here are some of the specific objectives of online shopping:

- To provide a more convenient shopping experience, as customers can shop from home or anywhere else with an internet connection.
- To provide a more efficient shopping experience, as customers can browse and compare products and prices quickly and easily.
- To provide a more personalized shopping experience, as customers can create wish lists and receive recommendations based on their past purchases.
- To provide a more secure shopping experience, as customers can pay for their purchases with a credit card or other secure payment method.

Online shopping has become increasingly popular in recent years, and it is expected to continue to grow in the future. This is due to the convenience, efficiency, and personalization that online shopping offers.

SYSTEM STUDY

Information systems projects' originate from many reasons: to achieve greater speed in processing data, better accuracy and improved consistency, faster information retrieval, integration of business areas, reduced cost and better security. The sources also vary project proposals originate with department managers, senior executives and systems analysis.

Sometimes the real origin is an outside source, such as a government agency which stipulates systems requirements the organization must meet. When the request is made, the first systems activity, the preliminary investigation, begins. The activity has three parts: request clarification, feasibility study and request approval.

Existing System:

The existing system was an automated system. But it was found to be inefficient in meeting the growing demands of population.

Drawbacks in the existing systems:

Disadvantage of the existing system:

- Time Consuming
- Expensive
- Needed an agent
- We have to out for that

SYSTEM ANALYSIS

System analysis is the process of gathering and interpreting facts, diagnosing problems and using the information to recommend improvements on the system. System analysis is a problem solving activity that requires intensive communication between the system users and system developers.

System analysis or study is an important phase of any system development process.

Here are some of the key aspects to consider when analyzing an online shopping project:

- Market size and growth potential: The size and growth potential of the market for the products or services being sold online is an important factor to consider. A large and growing market indicates that there is a strong demand for the products or services, which can make the online shopping project more successful.
- Competition: The level of competition in the online marketplace is another important factor to consider. A high level of competition can make it more difficult for an online shopping project to succeed, but it can also be a sign that there is a large and growing market for the products or services being sold.
- Customer demographics: The demographics of the target customers are also important to consider. The age, gender, income level, and location of the target customers can help to determine the best marketing strategies for the online shopping project.
- Technology requirements: The technology requirements for the online shopping project need to be carefully considered. The project needs to have a secure and reliable website or mobile app that can handle the volume of traffic expected.
- Customer service: Excellent customer service is essential for any online shopping project. Customers need to be able to easily contact the customer service team with questions or problems.

Feasibility Study

All projects are feasible when given unlimited resources and infinite time. It is both necessary and prudent to evaluate the feasibility of a project at the earliest possible time. A feasible study is not warranted for system in which economic justification is observed, technical risk is low, few legal problems are expected and no reasonable alternative exist.

An estimate is made of whether the identified user needs may be satisfied using our recent software and hardware technologies. The study will decide if the proposed system will be cost effective, from the business point of view and it can be developed in the existing budgetary constraints. The feasibility study should be relatively sharp and quick. The gesture should inform the decision of whether to go ahead with a more detailed analysis.

Feasibility study may be documented as a separated report to higher officials of the top-level management and can be included as appendices to the system specification. Feasibility of producing the quality software is reduced. The study is done in three phases:

1. Operational Feasibility

Proposed projects are beneficial only if they can be turned into information systems that will meet the organizations operating requirements.

The purpose of the operational feasibility study is to determine whether the new system will be used if it is developed and installed. And whether there will be resistance from users that will determine the possible application benefit.

In the proposed System named Online Webstore the operational feasibility study is performed with the help of the users of the system and the management.

2. Technical Feasibility

The technical feasibility study is a study of function, performances and constraints and the ability to create an acceptable system. Technical feasibility is frequently the most difficult area to achieve at the stage of product engineering process. Considering that are normally associated with the technical feasibility include.

- Development risk
- Resource availability
- Technology

3. Economical Feasibility

A cost evaluation is weighted against ultimate income or benefit derived from the developed system or product.

The economical feasibility of the Online Webstore is checked and accepted by both the users and the management of the organization. Since the Online Webstore has to deal with sensitive data like the software codes of organization the economical feasibility proved that it is economical and it can help the organization to avoid financial disaster due to the loss of data.

SOFTWARE ENGINEERING

Software engineering is the process of designing, developing, testing, and maintaining software.

E-Commerce Software Engineers are involved in the meat of our development project, tackling projects that will involve the core development of some of our main systems and modules.

While all the stuff that you see on the website may look easy, it can clients satisfied.

E-Commerce Software Engineers are part of the core team with responsibilities encompassing product-building and world-class delivery systems.

Responsibilities:

- The E-Commerce Software Engineer should be willing to tackle any technology language, or development environment on an as-needed basis.
- Complete high-impact projects using object-oriented code in modern frameworks and architecture.

Requirements:

- Incredible coding skills and superhuman programming capacity, as demonstrated by a continuous string of successful projects.
- E-Commerce Software Engineers should have in-depth mastery of multiple technologies, languages, and development environments.
- Excellent command of written and spoken English
- May involve after-hours works or on-call situations.

REQUIREMENTS

External Interface Requirements:

User Interface: User of the system will be provided with the Graphical user interface, there is no command line interface for any functions of the product. The user will get a pages i.e. Login page followed by Password

Software Interface:

- 1. Operating System: Windows 10
- 2. User Interface: GUI
- 3. Integrated Development Environment (IDE): Visual Studio Code
- 4. Web Technology Used: HTML, CSS, JAVASCRIPT

Hardware Interface:

- 1. Processor: Intel Processor / Ryzen Processor
- 2. RAM: Minimum of 4GB RAM
- 3. Graphics Card: Not Mandatory
- 4. Display Resolution: 1024x768 (For Better Experience in Desktop/Laptop)

Communication Interface:

IMPLEMENTATION & MAINTENANCE

Implementing an e-commerce shopping cart gives your business the ability to sell your products online day and night, reach new clients, target your ideal market, establish a strong brand, and build closer relationships with your customers by improving their purchasing experience.

Without the guidance of a consultant with years of e-commerce experience, programming expertise and deep knowledge, your efforts to set up an e-commerce solution can become plagued by cost overruns, programming errors, and delays resulting in poor sales performance and reduced profits.

Advantages of eCommerce implementation:

- Allows you to sell products 365 days a year, 24 hours a day.
- Lowers your costs and raises your sales margins
- Creates cost-saving efficiencies
- Creates an automated cycle of repeat business
- Connects you to new customers previously unavailable to you due to distance and operating hours
- Gives your customers control over how and when they'd like to shop

Maintenance:

- Reduced cart abandonment
- Better user experience

Testing

E-commerce websites are the most complex and intricate websites out there. This is due to their navigation, product categorization, preview functionalities, and key features like payment gateway integrations. So it is non-negotiable while developing eCommerce websites to undergo rigorous testing, ensuring all the functionalities work together in harmony without affecting the user experience.

Types of Ecommerce Testing

There are various methods used for manual testing. Each technique is used according to its testing criteria.

Types of manual testing are given below:

- Functional Testing
- Usability Testing
- Security Testing
- Performance Testing
- Mobile Application Testing

Functional testing:

If the tester wants to check if the checkout feature is working on the website and scoped only to that feature, it is called functional testing.

Usability testing:

When a customer wants to buy an item, searching, adding to the cart, and making payment should be simple and easy. This is where usability testing kicks in.

Security Testing

This ensures the safety of customers' data by checking DENIAL OF SERVICE ATTACK, User Account security, Data confidentiality, content security, credit card security, disable non-essential services.

Performance Testing

When a single user is trying to access an ecommerce website, then it should be extremely responsive. Performance testing ensures that even when the app scales, with millions of users trying to access the site simultaneously, the site should be functional and not crash.

Mobile Application Testing

As there is a lot of penetration into the mobile space, many users access the e-commerce websites on mobiles, so the website must have a good user experience across different mobile. This kind of testing is called mobile application testing.

Testing Ecommerce Test Cases:

- The user should be able to navigate to all the pages in the website
- There should be a fallback page for any page load errors
- Verify that all the links and banners work properly
- Search results should be displayed with the most relevant item being shown first
- All data related to the product – title, price, images, and description are all visible clearly
- Maintain a session for each user and test verify the session times out after a while

FUTURE SCOPE

The future scope of online shopping, often referred to as e-commerce, is vast and continually evolving as technology and consumer behaviour continue to change.

Augmented Reality (AR) and Virtual Reality (VR): AR and VR technologies will play a significant role in the future of online shopping. Customers will be able to virtually try on clothing, visualize products in their homes, and have immersive shopping experiences, enhancing the decision-making process.

Voice Shopping: Voice-activated devices and virtual assistants will continue to impact online shopping. Customers will use voice commands to search for and purchase products, requiring e-commerce businesses to optimize for voice search.

Sustainable Shopping: Environmental and ethical concerns will drive the demand for sustainable and eco-friendly products. E-commerce platforms will need to cater to this trend by offering eco-friendly products and transparent supply chains.

Social Commerce: Social media platforms will further integrate shopping features, allowing users to discover and buy products directly from their favourite social networks.

Data Security and Privacy: Online shopping platforms will need to invest in robust cybersecurity measures and adhere to evolving data protection regulations to ensure the security and privacy of customer data.
